

Pat Dunn Refutes the Decline of the West

Date: Mon, 12 Feb 1996 13:25:36 EST
From: SPULDA@vax.clarku.edu
To: RMACK1@vax.clarku.edu
Subject: you'll be interested in this...

Subject: I can't believe this is real!!!
(fwd)
ugh!
— Forwarded message —

Yesterday, Feb. 1, 1996, Both houses of our congress passed a telecommunications bill which had a provision in it making it illegal to discuss ABORTION of all things on the Internet. That means that no web sites, FTP sites, Gopher sites, or E-MAIL MESSAGES (!!!) Can contain any reference to abortion. Not even in a clinical manner. A doctor is not allowed to Email a patient with a recommendation on whether or not to have an abortion.

Whether or not you are for or against abortion does not matter, abortion in itself is not the issue. The issue is the curtailing of every American's first amendment rights. Clinton has said that he will sign this bill into law, possibly even today. The bill calls for jail time and heavy fines of ANYONE caught discussing abortion in any way on the net, even in the international news groups.

This is a horrible abuse of legislative power against the American people, and we can do something about it. Please, write the president at President@whitehouse.gov, and let him know that you are outraged about this bill passing (if indeed you are outraged, which I sincerely hope you are.) Also, mass forward this message to as many people as possible, anyone you know who uses the net. With this bill, and the development of the Compuserve Newsgroup blackout, our freedom on the net is being seriously curtailed. Please help, and spread this message. Thank you
From Mawgspawn
(Alexander Russell Warner)
Vassar, Class of '99

Date: 24-AUG-1995 15:23 Permanent
From: JACK::PDUNN

Description: goats eat whiny bitches and their dickhead friends goats munched happily on the filthy ankles of bad college men who looked at children in playgrounds with a lewd gaze. The goats were larger than most, made of steel and chromian standard lawn slop, and had big horns that once served as hood ornaments for gigantic cadilacs that sped around the cities in the 1950's with women with gigantic tits. These women often the two vax loser pathetic dweeb silly geeses who made dumb folders and had headaches from overly tight bras, and had bratty 11 year old cousins who shaved their heads in some pathetic imitation of the future star trek captain dude.

The two vax loser pathetic dweeb silly geeses who made dumb folders and allegedly blew up others writhed in somewhat discomfort as the goats began to lick at their genital regions. The goats tongues reeked on cheap beer and bummed cigarettes, and sported tiny tatoos of Nine Inch Nails and other Big Rock Groups on their lips. The goats left grass and waste products on the ground, the helpless vax geeks rolled into this filthy sewage and became smeared in it, yuck!

Just then a giant owl descended from the skies, her voluptuous form settling all-comfy-like on the back of one of the biggest goats present. The owl fired beams of 8th level Magic Thallid fire death rays from the Abyss, and made the helpless humanoid-type-almost-human-but-too-much-of-an-asshole-to-be-called-human,-or-at-least-relatively so...anyhow, the bad vaxers got all shrivelled up by the filthy goddess of owlsex, and everyone lived happily ever after.

Date: 4-FEB-1996 15:29 SMART_CLARK
From: JACK::FORISPA
Subj: Re: "Smart" Talk...

CHUARD:
-> "In short, pornography is not about sex.
-> It's about an imbalance of power that -> allows and even requires sex to be used as -> a form of aggression."
—Gloria Steinem, "Erotica vs. Pornography"

i completely disagree with this, entirely, 100%
i'm personally not into pornography (although of course i was when i was kid...)

because it just doesn't turn me on (its just two sweaty entities bouncing against each other,
one wearing a moustache and a gold chain...)

however to me it's nothing to do with power.
of course it can be, as any movie/etc can be, if the creator makes it that way. but pornography is not inherently about "imbalance of power". i think that's BS, from what i've seen (and i've seen my share) the most common scenario is roughly equivalent to this:

plumber: hey where're the pipes that're broken
woman: right here (undresses)
(and they have sex).

where is the imbalance of power in this?

Date: 8-FEB-1996 04:07 FLAME
From: JACK::JPELMAN
Subj: Re: AGURVEY

-> -> I'm better than all of you.
-> Even tho when you sing "yellow ledbeer" it
-> should be renamed "Hello Bedwetter"?

me too. even worse then the stomach problems is the bed wetting. i'm tired of waking up in the middle of the night shivering in a pool of cold urine. i'm tired of developing that rash between my legs due to the caustic nature of amonia.

and even worse then the bed wetting is the stomach problems; i'm tired of the searing pain forcing me to the emergency room only to have some fellow shove his finger up my ass
and tell "well, there appears to be no blockage." i'm tired of struggling to the bathroom in order to vomit, and, as my head is slumped over the bowl, i shit my pants just as my lungs empty. i guess you can call me
"double barrel."

Date: 9-FEB-1996 04:05 GENERAL
From: JACK::FORISPA
Description: hi
So i noticed all these different organizations

arrange movie nights now and then. does anything really original ever happen on campus, or am i just not noticing the posters?
why doesn't anyone ever have, say, a Banana Party where you have to come with a banana,
and if you're dressed as a banana you get free drinks (oh sorry forgot about the fascistic 21 thing - make it free lemonade). and how about inflatable banana fights ala the gladiators thing? or anything else ridiculous?

Date: 10-FEB-1996 10:19 FLAME
From: JACK:RMACK1
Subj: Re: A note from the Moderator

BSHEEHAN, Moderator, wrote:
-> Those of you who do read and post should
-> know that as of Feb. 2 1996, it is now illegal
-> to discuss any matters considered to be
-> "offensive" due to the Telecom bill which
-> was signed into law via electronic signature
-> earlier today. Exact specifics for violating
-> this law are as of yet unknown, but could
-> carry a fine up to $250,000. Post at your own
-> risk.

Lick my bunghole you hermaphroditic
hamster-fucker!

Date: 10-FEB-1996 ANNOYING_MOOSES
From: JACK::CHAGELSTEIN
Description: Woodland Street=Candyland

Is that a Gingerbread house or Traina's living quaters?

Thanks for making a liberal arts college
some tacky architects' vision.

Are architects today using gameboards as inspiration?

Another thing I'm having an Au Bon Pain-
In-The-Ass about:

If educational institutions are for-profit institutions, then call them that; therefore, Clark Corporation. Let students purchase stock in the corporation, so, if the school gouges for tuition, etc., and profits, the students profit also. Students then can become market makers for their own stock they own,
and gain, ironically, the educational benefits of communication, finance and organization.
Instead, I have to beef my jerkey at the Gingerbread house.

Date: 12-FEB-1996 01:18
From: GRAMPS::TGIBSON
Description: Re: Amusing bumper sticker

I once saw:
"Jesus Saves—at first national bank"